A11	Industry	Constituency building	Establish relationships with policy makers	Parliament House Canberra, Australia 21 October 2015 The Industry Leaders Forum brings together the senior executives from the top food, grocery and beverage companies. It provides our members with a once-a-year opportunity to actively engage with key government ministers, decision makers and public policy influencers and to hear first-hand about the pressures and federal issues shaping the food and grocery industry policy agenda. "The Annual Industry Leaders Forum is designed to encourage active discussion between key food, beverage and grocery personnel, retailers, Commonwealth and State politicians, senior government officials and academics. The Industry Leaders Forum focuses on a range of issues of vital importance to industry and provides a platform for industry and stakeholders to examine issues affecting public policy and company operations. The seminar offers delegates an opportunity to engage with senior Federal Ministers to better understand government policy direction and how business and government can work in partnership to examine and comment on the major issues facing our industry." "AFGC engages directly with Federal, State and Territory governments to promote the interests of our industry in the development of policy. The Annual Industry Leaders Dinner is designed to showcase the Australian food, beverage and grocery industry to high level stakeholders. AFGC aims to attract the highest level of attendance from a distinguished guest list for this event. The Industry Leaders Dinner, attracting approximately 150-200 guests, has built a reputation as one of Canberra's premier events and will continue to develop into a leading function in the calendar year. The guest list for this event includes key personnel from corporate management within the food, beverage and grocery sector, major players in Commonwealth and State parliaments, senior government and international officials, academics and media representatives."	Sponsorship can include "Preferential dinner seating at a prominent table (at discretion of AFGC)"	http://www.afgc.org.au/2014/12/industry-leaders-forum/ http://www.afgc.org.au/events/sponsorship-opportunities/
A12	Industry	Constituency building	Establish relationships with policy makers	"Equally important has been our ability to push back on various strident demands from pressure groups and legislators by presenting strong evidence-based policy backed by effective media and political advocacy. (...) The new Federal Government has set a pro-business policy agenda with a commitment to reduce cost, remove complexity and facilitate productivity and economic activity. But it is taking time to implement this agenda particularly due to a gridlocked legislative process. (...) The AFGC continues to work with policy makers, government		http://www.afgc.org.au/download/617/

A91	News	Constituency building	Seek involvement in the community	The Coca-Cola Australia Foundation (CCAF) is calling on applications for its 2015 Community Grants Program – closing Friday March 27 – from local Community groups and programs with DGR status, that aim to make a positive difference in the lives of marginalised young Australians. The CCAF awards up to 40 grants a year ranging from $1,000 to $10,000 each for successful applicants. Since its inception, over $10 million has been awarded to hundreds of programs across Australia. Julie White, CCAF chairwoman, encourages all Community groups to apply for a grant, explaining that: "The Coca-Cola Australia Foundation Grants are a great opportunity for local Community organisations to receive financial assistance to continue the positive impact they make on marginalised youth in the Community." "Since 2002," adds White, "these grants have provided valuable support to Community organisations assisting marginalised youth. We are looking forward to supporting the next round of grantees and encourage all organisations that support marginalised youth to apply."		http://www.fpmagazine.com.au/2-4-million-in-grants-up-for-grabs-340654/

A116	Industry	Information and messaging	Frame the debate on diet- and public health-related issues	Recently, Coca-Cola attracted criticism from The Parent's Jury for an incentive that provides sporting equipment to amateur sports clubs. Called the Powerade Sports Loyalty Program, there were concerns the program was designed to reach kids - but we want to set the record straight. We are always striving to be responsible marketers. [...] To cater for that demand, we offer beverages to all amateur sporting clubs with members of all ages. Part of our service is the Powerade Sports Loyalty Program, where clubs can collect points which they can exchange for equipment such as cricket balls, kicking tees, bikes and BBQs - the kind of stuff that can make a real difference to community sport. While it's called the Powerade Sports Loyalty Program, clubs can earn points from any of our non-alcoholic portfolio, including juice, still and sparkling water and diet and low kilojoule options. Meanwhile, it's the club that's rewarded, not the consumer. [...] It's important to us to be part of, and responsible to, the communities in which we operate, and so we're always keen to hear from those communities if you have concerns.		http://www.coca-colajourney.com.au/stories/being-a-good-sport-our-policy-on-responsible-marketing

A123	News	Information and messaging	Frame the debate on diet- and public health-related issues	On Coca Cola's website:  By: Zoe Wilson, Accredited Practicing Dietitian (...)          McDonalds is giving the fast food world a gourmet, high-tech facelift with their new 'Create Your Taste' menu.          (...) However the fact that you can create your own meal or burger and you have a more a gourmet style menu to choose from doesn't necessarily mean a healthier meal, so with my dietitian's hat on here's a few tips for creating your own meal at Macca's:          Don't go overboard, the more ingredients you add the higher you bump up the overall kilojoule count, salt and fat content.          Be sure to add salad, this will add flavour and taste without too many more kilojoules.          If you opt for a sauce keep it to one or maybe even ask for a half serve of sauce.          While you can choose the number of beef patties that make up your gourmet burger, stick with just the one it will still taste great and again help to keep kilojoules down.          And if you are managing your weight I'd suggest going to a low kilojoule beverage like a diet soft drink or water to top it off.          McDonalds have come up with the future of fast food. A141	Charity	Constituency building	Seek involvement in the community	At Macca's we're proud to play an active role in neighbourhoods all over Australia. One of the ways we do this is by supporting groups and charities that are important to our customers or that make a difference to the lives of our fellow Australians. At the heart of our community commitment is Ronald McDonald House Charities (RMHC). RMHC is one of Australia's major children's charities and helps thousands of seriously ill children and their families every year. To raise funds for RMHC, McHappy Day is held annually and everyone in the McDonald's business – franchisees, crew, managers, head office staff and suppliers – participates in some way. Celebrities and local personalities join in the fun and two dollars from every Big Mac® sold is donated to RMHC . Other products and merchandise are also sold to contribute to the fundraising.		http://www.rmhc.org.au/

When grains contain awesome combinations of protein, fibre, vitamins and minerals, we call them Superfoods or supergrains. And there are other benefits to oats, such as: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Cholesterol lowering – Eating oats daily, as part of a balanced, healthy diet, will help your heart health by lowering cholesterol re-absorption. Beta glucan, found in the bran and endosperm layer of the oat grain, helps to lower cholesterol re-absorption levels by inhibiting the re-absorption of cholesterol back into the bloodstream. Research shows that 3g of beta glucan every day will help to lower cholesterol re-absorption.</li> <li>• Providing fibre for digestive health – Oats are also high in insoluble fibre. Insoluble fibre passes through the digestive system without being absorbed, which bulks up stools and helps keep bowel movements regular.</li> <li>• A natural source of energy – Oats are a natural wholegrain that is high in fibre and also provides carbohydrates and protein for energy.
